HIS WORK NOT SO TERRIBLE AS FIRST REPORTED.

(By United Press.)
LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 29.—The latest and most intelligent estimate of the total number of dead throughout the city is that it will not exceed one hundred and fifty persons. This is careful and fairly accurate. $2,500,000 Worth of Property Destroyed.

At Grand Tower four were killed; three children are missing and there is great destruction of property.

Paducah and Grand River Lashed by the Storm.

Paducah, Ky., March 29.—The swath of the tornado which wrought such terrible destruction in this city is clearly marked throughout the State. Reports from Paducah, near which place the whirl wind must have entered Kentucky, give details of much damage. The new towns of Grand River, on the Cumberland river, was destroyed and several people killed. In Larkin county many houses were razed to the ground. From Crittenden county the same story comes. Heavy storms are reported from nearly all the river counties. In Christian and Trigg counties, in the southern part of the State, the loss of life and property was very heavy. East of Louisville but little serious damage is reported, although a number of houses were unroofed by the wind.

Blackford, Ky., Swept Away.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., March 29th.—A letter from Blackford, Ky., confirms the report of the severe calamity at that point. Nearly the entire town was swept away by a tornado on Thursday night. Many were killed.

The Cyclone's Work on the River.

MEMPHIS, TENN., March 29th.—Word has just been received that the tow boat, Nail City, was caught by the cyclone Thursday night at Gayosa, 135 miles above here. The citizens seem desirous of caring for their own dead and injured. Only one lodge room was destroyed. As far as known only one mason was injured, and he not dangerously.

Caledonia Entirely Destroyed.

LOUISVILLE, March 29.—A special to Times from Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "One of the most distressing nature came to be received from the section of and adjoining counties that were hit by the cyclone. The Latest Statistics of Death and Damage.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 29.—The latest estimate of dead made this afternoon places the figures between one hundred and twenty and one hundred and fifty. In Jeffersonville it is about $750,000.

THE TARIFF BILL.

Will be Reported To-morrow.

(By United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 29.—The tariff bill was completed by the Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee to day, and will be reported to the full Committee on Monday or Tuesday. Before adjourning, the Republican conference framed a resolution enjoining all the members to secrecy in regard to the provisions of the bill until it is presented to the full committee.

A very important change in the original bill was made at the meeting. The conference, after a long discussion, concluded to change the sugar schedule so that sugars including No. sixteen and below, should pay duty at the rate of 35 per cent. and all above No. sixteen at 40 per cent.

MONEY FOR THE NAVY.

Much Less the Estimates—But Greater Than the Last Appropriation.

(By United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 29.—The naval appropriation bill will be reported to the House Monday. It was completed by the committee on naval affairs today. A total appropriation of $22,151,525 is provided by the bill. This amount is about $3,400,000 less than the estimates of the department. These estimates did not, however, include provision for an emergency in the navy. While the total appropriation is much smaller than the estimates, it is $450,013 greater than the appropriation for the present year.

All of the different stores and business houses looked like they had all the trade here is all they could ask for.

A large field near here caught fire, and presented a beautiful sight to those who saw it. No damage is reported.

The wind had full sway over every thing last night. The temperature commenced falling about 7 o'clock, and fell about twenty degrees.

The citizens here are fixing up their front yards and sidewalks. This gives the town a better look, and impresses a stranger more than any thing else.

There are six large tobacco warehouses here and they are all doing a good business. The breaks yesterday were not as large as they ought to have been, but the grade of tobacco was finer and the prices better.

WHAT THE EDITORS SAY.

From day to day we have published a few of the extracts from the State newspapers in which the advent of the DAILY STATE CHRONICLE is alluded to in pleasant terms. We regret that our space will not permit the publication of all that our generous brethren of the press have been good enough to say.

THIS WEEK'S Lexington Ledger says that the Indian Hill Farmers' Alliance met at Miss M. P. Beck's, a member of the order in Davidson county, on Saturday, the 22nd of March, 1890, and built ninety panels of fence, and repaired 123 panels more for her, as she was not able to do the work herself. If "the injury of one is the injury of all," as the CHRONICLE truly believes, the need of an unfortunate member ought to be the occasion for all to render aid. The Indian Hill Farmers' Alliance has set a good example to other Alliances in the State, and preached a sermon of as much truth and power as any minister will proclaim from the sacred desk to-day. "Inasmuch as you have done it unto the least of these my little ones, ye have done it unto me."

The woods eight miles south of here caught fire near Catawba Springs church day before yesterday, and much timber was burned. The fire raged all night and was plainly visible from here. It was still burning at 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

Sparks from a freight engine set fire to the fields and woods early yesterday morning at Nelson, six miles this side of Durham, and considerable damage was done. The North Carolina railway lost over fifty cords of wood and its cross-ties were set on fire. The east-bound train was stopped, and its crew had to work hard to extinguish the burning cross-ties.

The dentists of the city, wishing to get away from their places of business earlier in the afternoon than has heretofore been their custom, have agreed to make their appointments so that they will not be detained later than 5:30 p. m., except in cases of persons living away from the city, or cases of suffering or emergency. Of course they expect to continue to attend all cases of suffering at any hour of the day or night.

OUR SUNDAY GREETING.

THE DAILY STATE CHRONICLE greets its readers this Sunday morning with its pleasantest greetings. The past week has witnessed large editions to the subscription list of the paper, and we feel full of gratitude to the good people of the State for their substantial evidences of appreciation. We do not believe that any paper in the State ever, in so short a time, obtained so many subscribers or won so warm a place in the hearts of the people of the State. Every new subscription enables us to make the paper that much better. We shall seek to make it brighter and more acceptable every day, and it rests with the people whether it shall be as great a paper as is needed at the capital of the State.

We feel assured that they will rally to the ever-increasing support of the DAILY STATE CHRONICLE. The letters received from men of all callings attest the reception of the paper. We make today a few extracts from the many letters we have received, and regret that we have not the space to give them all.

BOYLE IS FREE.

THE JURY RETURN A VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY.

The Closing Testimony and the Long Argument—Some Remarkable Scenes in the Court House Last Night—A Great Ovation to Boyle.

There was a light attendance at the opening of court yesterday. The first witness examined was Mrs. R. H. Bradley, for the prosecution. She said she saw Geneva Whitaker on Wednesday after May 11th. (Counsel for the defence objected to her making statements as to the personal condition of Miss Whitaker and she was dismissed.)

Mrs. Wesley Whitaker, the step-mother of Geneva, was the next witness. She is very frail and her voice was low. She said she was at home the evening of May 11th. Geneva came home. She was very nervous and excited and for two or three days afterward she looked badly, was nervous and appeared to be in pain. Her person showed bruises. Her elbows were skinned and there were finger prints on her throat and shoulders. There was blood upon her undergarments; a small quantity of it. Cross-examined, she said Geneva was dressed in a calico dress.

Isaac Hodges, the well known negro porter of Goldsboro, a witness for the State, said he had been a porter thirty-six years. He remembered Boyle's passing through Goldsboro May 11th. He stopped three hours. He took a milk punch, which he directed should be made strong. Then he ordered a quart of punch, of the same strength. Isaac put this in a quart bottle. He was somewhat under the influence of liquor when he took the train. He was intoxicated enough for Isaac to notice it. He did not stagger, but he walked as straight as Isaac did, who had had no punch that day. Cross-examined, Isaac said Boyle came in on the New Bern train. The punch was put in Boyle's flask. Boyle bought his own ticket. Nothing in his walk or conversation showed that he was drunk.

M. B. Barbee, Esq., testified as to the construction of the Church of the Sacred Heart, the location of the chapel, the doors and windows, also as to the residence portion adjoining, in which was Boyle's room. He exhibited a plan of the premises which he had prepared. This plan was inspected by the jury, very intently. During this examination of the plan Boyle read the STATE CHRONICLE. Inside the bar, and near Boyle, sat Wesley Whitaker, Esq., Geneva's father. By this time all the seats in the court room were filled, though there was nothing to interest spectators.

Mr. Barbee then gave evidence as to the mental condition of Father Reilly, whose rooms were under those of Boyle. After the occurrence he went to look after Father Reilly, found him walking the floor, his manner being wild, and presently he fled. Mr. Barbee following him, to watch him. Finally Father Reilly returned to his room, Mr. Barbee begging him to be quiet and go to bed. Boyle called Father Reilly, and the latter started to go up stairs to him, but Mr. Barbee asked him not to go, but he had discovered some months ago that Father Reilly's mind was affected. He was melancholy and appeared to be brooding over something. Boyle had had charge of the church, as assistant priest, for some months before this occurrence, having been sent on account of Father Reilly's physical and mental condition, the latter being unable to properly discharge his duties, and being very absent minded. Solicitor Argo asked a question as to the teachings of the church, and the authority of the priest. (At this stage a juror, Jeff. Smith was seized with a violent attack of nausea and the proceedings were interrupted while a physician was sent for. In a few minutes the juror, who is quite an old man, stated that he felt well enough for the trial to proceed.) Boyle's counsel asked the judge to note an exception to the admission of evidence regarding the spiritual authority of priests and the teachings of this church regarding the same during the time Geneva Whitaker was a member of it. The judge overruled the exception. Mr. Barbee said the teachings here were the same the world over. In the confessional the penitents are required to abandon any sin they may have committed. The priest then enjoins a penance and this must be performed. The priest then pronounces absolution or remission of sins, if the penitents are truly sorry. The priests take a vow of chastity and celibacy, and this is a teaching or doctrine of the church. (The counsel for the defence excepted to the admission of this evidence, but the judge admitted it.)

Cross-examined, Mr. Barbee said that Father Reilly was greatly excited after the arrest of Boyle. He was mentally able to attend to the spiritual duties of the parish and heard confessions up to that time. He described the form of the confessional, or screen in which the priest sits. The features cannot be distinguished, but only the form. The absolution amounts to nothing unless the penitent is truly sorry for the sin. There is no teaching that a woman shall submit herself to the embraces of a priest, nor has a priest any power to compel such submission. The priest's room is not a place for confession. As a rule confessions are made only in the confessional, sometimes in the sacristy; never in the priest's room. All Latin priests take the vow of chastity. Foot steps in the room upstairs which Boyle occupied can be heard in the church, and it is not possible for anyone to cry out "Help! Help!" five or six times at the top of a woman's voice in that room and not be heard in the body of the church. There was no doubt that such call or sound of that character would be heard in the church, with streets on two sides and houses just in rear, and as a rule more people pass there Saturday evenings just about sunset. He testified as
